To receive an update on Electric vehicle charging

Following the meeting on 11 February, Instavolt were asked to go ahead with the project. On investigation, it was discovered that, although HTC has owned the car park since 1984, it was never registered with land registry. This has involved a lengthy and complicated bureaucratic process, but it is believed that all paperwork is now in order and that the Registry documents will be available soon. Instavolt will then be able to start their surveying. Their turn-around time is generally a few months.

Recommendation: that HTC notes the report.
