Agenda Item	12

To consider a request from the History Society to allow the fixing of blue plaques to buildings in Halstead

The History Society feels that Halstead should remember those who have contributed significantly to the community by putting up blue plaques. The first they have in mind is Michael Portway, and they would like his plaque to go up outside the museum. They would also like Lucy Greenwood, Augustine Courtauld and Samuel Courtauld to be among those to be remembered in this way. This is a project for several years, as there are many worthy citizens of Halstead.

They would like to ask for the general support of the Council in this venture.

Recommendation: that the Council gives its general support to the idea of blue plaques to commemorate worthy Halstead former residents.
