To consider installing a permanent outside light at the East end of the hall

At present, there is a permanent outside light, switched on from inside, at the main entrance to the hall. At the disabled entrance end, there are lights which come on intermittently in response to movement near the disabled entrance or the entrance to the offices. These do not come on immediately someone exits the building, and go off very rapidly. In particular to protect anyone disabled approaching the hall, but also others who are using those entrances at night, it is proposed to install an outside light which can be switched on from inside or outside.

The cost of such a light would be £215 + VAT.

Recommendation : that HTC agrees to the installation of a new outside light for safety reasons.
